What Sort of Wife Do You Want? What Sort of Hubby

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

The New York bachelor is the social Burbank who has transformed the modest violet into the midnight sunflower. Charged with being bold, showy, artificial, anti-domestic, the girl of "The girls forget, or are ignorant of of the fact," continues "O. S. S.,"

"that those speed maniacs when it comes to selecting a wife ninety-nine times out of one hundred pick out the quiet, modest, retiring little person."

In these naive observations there's many an interesting problem for her should important and many an interesting problem for herself in a hermit-like way to her home. admission, an amendment of special

She need not be a doll, and she of the future? Must she who avoids paint and powder and sensational clothes sit patiently in the corner until a young man, surfeited with these attractions, bestows upon her the honor of his hand? And is this tardy acknowledgment of her superiority a

HASN'T FOUND THE GIRL WITH THE 11 SPECIFICATIONS.

"Dear Madam: I knew a young man who became acquainted with a nice young lady, but because she did not show 'class' and was not in the habit of frequenting cabarets he cut the acquaintance short. But two years after, when his romantic spirit began to subside, he sought the young woman whom he had rejected, and after an acquaintance of several months, married her. The little incident speaks selection of a life mate I should pick out one with these qualities:

"1. She should be educated, if possible. At least, she should have common sense. She should be able to discuss matters of worldwide importance as well as those of common and mutual interest.

"2. She should be able to attend to all household duties efficiently. This, of course, includes good cooking.

Nothing pleases me more than to see a young lady or even an eldorly woman dressed in a good white or pink silk waist and a well tailored blue or black dress.
